Commercial, Residential Users To Benefit From VEPCO Rate Cut

Virginia Electric and Power Company has reduced its electric rates by almost three million dollars to Virginia users starting December 1.

The bulk of the decrease will be enjoyed by commercial and industrial users. Of the total amount of rate adjustment in Virginia, 22 per cent will be applicable to residential customers, 56 per cent to commercial customers and 22 per cent to industrial customers.

For the residential customers, the biggest part of the reduction will apply to those who use electricity for heating water and home heating. The new rate schedule will affect all Vepco customers who use more than 50 kilowatt - hours a month. But a Vepco spokesman said this would mean very little decrease for anyone who does not use electricity for heating.

The new rates include an optional schedule for residential customers with electric water heaters. This permits 50 per cent of the monthly use over 50 kilowatt-hours to be billed at one cent per kilowatt-hour.

This will benefit customers who do not have separate meters for their hot water service. In some cases it also will benefit customers who do have separate meters for water heating service.

The new rate schedule will not provide separate rates for water heating, unless the customer has off-peak service.

Commercial customers will enjoy the largest reduction per year, estimated to be $1,567,000. Industrial users of electricity will save an estimated $617,200.

A similar amount, $618,500 will be saved by residential users. However those using electric heat will receive the major portion of this.

Since 1954, Vepco has had five downward rate adjustments in the territory it serves. These adjustments totaled more than $1,220,000. The present downward adjustment will total $3,050,000 in savings to customers throughout Vepco's service area.

N&W To Spend Millions For Improvements

ROANOKE, VA., —The Norfolk and Western Railway is spending approximately $59.5 million this year for capital improvements in operating equipment and railroad facilities, as compared with $37.5 million last year, Stuart T. Saunders, N&W president, said recently.

Saunders pointed out that a substantial portion of the big 1962 increase reflects the encouragement for more rapid plant and equipment modernization given in the U. S. Treasury Department revision of depreciation schedules and in the investment tax credit provisions enacted by Congress.

Nearly $33 million is being spent for 5 diesel locomotive unit, 291 freight cars of six different types, and some 2,000 N&W built 85-ton coal hopper cars.

Property improvements were made throughout the N&W system. Expenditures include much of the cost of the N&W's new $25 million coal pier now nearing completion at Norfolk, car repair shops and other Norfolk Terminal supporting facilities, and a new Norfolk station and office building.

New locomotives include 44 model GP-30 road switchers of 2250 horsepower from the Electro Motive Division of General Motors, and six 1800 horsepower road switchers, model RS-36, from Alco Products, Inc. Costing more than $10.8 million, they bring the N&W modern motive power fleet to 611 diesels.

Largest single freight car order is being filled in N&W's own shops here — for a fourth group of 1,000 85-ton, roller bearing hopper cars. These cars, of original N&W design, will cost about $10.5 million. A fifth 1,000-car order already is scheduled for production in 1963.

Zip, The Chimp Given To Zoo

Martia Kraus, Concord, Va. has quite a story to tell about "Zip", a pot chimpanzee who is now skated for the Mill Mountain Zoo, Roanoke, Va.

Originally Mrs. Kraus asked for a monkey as a pet since her son, Bob Gunter, now in the Mediterranean area, was overseas. Bob obliged with a chimpanzee and later told the folks it cost him $65.

Kraus, who also owns more than 40 chihuahuas as a professional breeder, found out that a chimpanzee is a natural born thief, and "Zip" has been no exception.

The Chimp jerked his eyeglasses off, new ones, and now Kraus wears the less expensive "5 and "10 variety. "Zip" grew extremely jealous of him, and finally vented his jealousy on Mrs. Kraus, biting her hand severely enough to require medical care.

Now two years old, the chimp would have to be sent to a zoo at the age of 5 years, anyway the Krauses report. "Despite all the money he has cost, we really grew to love Zip," said Kraus on Tuesday.

A friend from the Va. Parks and Recreation Commission is to care for Zip until springtime, when the zoo will have Zip for all to see from a safe distance, of course.)

...ristmas Eve (Dec. 24) ... quarter at 11 was decid... The station according to Mrs. Townsend will be located in southern Angola, and will include a primary school, mission headquarters, and medical facilities. Already more than 30 Adventist mission stations are operating through out Angola. In the central part of Angola, the church operates the Bonga Mission Hospital, which as a 59-bed capacity and includes a school of nursing. There is also a primary school and hospital in Northern Angola. This is called the "Cuale Mission" and it serves the Kimbundu people.

A few elementary schools are already under the direction of nationals in the southern part of Angola, but up until now, medical facilities have been skimpy. Funds for these projects received at this time will be used in building the new station. A portion will also go for an evangelistic center in Paris and enlargement of a school on the island of Mauritius in the Indian Ocean.
